SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

PUBLISHED BY THE HERALD PUBLISHING CO.

Successful advertisers do not insert a stereotyped advertisement day after day and year after year.

THE UP-TO-DATE ADVERTISER

has something to say, he says it quickly, as boldly, as loudly.

He can, and says it in a manner that

PEOPLE ARE COMPELLED TO HEAR

and cannot fail to understand.

HE USES THE DAILY PAPER

that will appear tomorrow, and for next week he has a new announcement to make.

WHEN

he has nothing to say, HE SAYS NOTHING, and saves his money.

Forecast for today: Fair weather, colder.

BRIEF AND BREEZY.

On the 21st the Salt Lake temple will close, to reopen on the 22nd.

Walter Walker's Trial For Arson and Incest Set For Monday—The Jury Fails to Agree in the Case of the P. V. Coal Co. vs. Simons—Architect Hansen's Bill—The Christies Come to an Understanding—Libel Suit Against The Herald Dismissed.

J. C. Williams, under indictment on charges for burglary, may be tried for trial Judge Bartch yesterday.

Walter Walker, of Heber City, who was indicted some few weeks ago by the grand jury on charges of arson and incest, was brought into court for trial, but owing to the absence of three girls, witnesses for the prosecution, it went over until Monday.

Attachments were made for the three witnesses, Laura Walker, daughter of the defendant, Cora Nell and Louise Rasmussen.

Attorney Kelley made application for the discharge of the defendant on his own recognizance, which was refused by Judge Howat who remarked that the crimes charged were too serious for anything of that kind.

Attorney Kelley remarked that "people were not always honestly charged with the crimes they were guilty of," whereupon his honor denied the application.

Clark, Kelly and Connors on Trial For That Crime.

George Clark, James Kelly and Frank Connors, three young men, were put upon trial for holding up and robbing one Louis Rosendahl on West Fourth South street on Sept. 14 last.

Assistant District Attorney Howat prosecuted and Attorney Straup defended.

Rosendahl took the stand and testified that he had been held up by three men, on the date named, and that he lost about twenty dollars.

The men held a pistol to his head while another of them went through his pockets, and identified Clark and Connors as two of the three, but couldn't swear to Kelly.

Soon after the robbery the police arrested the three men who have been in jail since. Sergeant Ford and Officers Raleigh and Gillespie were examined and several witnesses for the prosecution.

The case against the other two was not concluded when court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.
